We direct our readers' attention to the article, copied in another column, from the Saturday Review, on Mr Burlingame's Mission. It is highly interesting as expressive of influential English opinion in reference to that curious political incident.

THE entertainment given last night in aid of the Relief Fund of the 73rd Regt. was an exceedingly pleasant affair. The excellent band of the regiment played some very good music, and played it very well, too. and songs and readings from popular authors were included in the programme. There is much about these entertainments that, apart from the benevolent object they are intended to promote, should secure for them a wider recognition than they have yet received, not simply for the sake of the regimental fund, but for the more selfish its harbor, and consequently a large motive of the enjoyment they afford. Of course, as Clark admitted, he would not have done so had he been in his proper senses; but His Worship strongly advised Clark to take care, and to take no more liquor than he could conveniently carry with safety to himself and the community Clark also smashed a chair in a partia manner, and refused to pay his chair-hire. CORRESPONDENCE.

POLLARD V. SMALE. To the Editor of the "CHINA MAIL. Hongkong, ceptember 9th, 1868. Sir, -I observe in your issue of last evening, portion of a letter appearing in The London and China Herald of July 31st signed (strange to say) " Equity." I must ask you to publish this, in flat denial and contradiction of the assertions made by "Equity" with regard to the report made by the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council to Her Majesty, upon the reference to them of part of the matters contained in my petition to Her Majesty. The writer of the letter professes to give publicity to what he says "are considered in legal circles the exact facts of the case," and, he also roundly asserts, what Her Majesty "determined." With regard to the first point, I would merely state that the first intimation I had of the result of the case, was by a telegram in the following words: "Pollard v. Smale. Judgment entirely in your favour and fine remitted." This telegram was forwarded to me by the Solicitors having charge of my interests, and when I state that they were Messieurs Freshfields, gentlemen whose position and professional standing need no mention from me, I think the public will incline to credit those gentlemen with more knowledge of what was "considered in legal circles," than the person whose identity is but thinly veiled under the singularly ill-chosen nom de plume of "Equity." That Messrs Freshfield's telegram was fully and entirely correct, any one who has read the Order in Council of June 19th. 1868, must I think be satisfied, but fortunately the matter is not left in any doubt. The writer of the letter says that the prayer of my petition "was not granted," and therefore the judgment recorded on the minutes of the Supreme Court at Hongkong untouched." I say however that the prayer of my petition was granted, that the sentence was reversed, and that such reversal is now on record in the Supreme Court, and I beg to hand you herewith;-

1st.—Copy of Despatch No. 375, intimat ing to me reversal of sentence, and returning me the fine: 2nd.—Copy of my letter to Registrar Supreme Court ;

3rd.—Copy of letter of Registrar Supreme Court in reply; and I add also copy of my letter to subscribers to payment of fine. These four documents are too lengthy to ask you to publish gratis, but I would beg you to publish them at the foot of this letter, charging for them as an advertisement. Of the animus which actuates the self lubbed "Equity," there can be little doubt but as to stir up the matter afresh can serve no good end. I confine my notice of him and his cause, to laying before the pub the indisputable facts from which, and not from any version given by either side, they will form their opinion.

I am, Sir, yours faithfully, EDWARD H. POLLARD

In the same way it had only been by bombarding Canton that the nodid all they could to make the entrance into Canton, and in the other, the entrance into Pekin, impossible to Europeans. They deprecated, coaxed, wheedled, and postponed the execution of the treaty in each by instinct rather than by experience that courtesy or petition to the Emperor are never made at all. At present, a valid justification of this omission is presented by the youth of the Emperor, who is still a minor.

But by the omission the Chinese will profit that we have waived each right, just as they used to say we had waived the right to go will say that the people never heard of the concession having been made to us; that they have never seen it exercised; that they would disbelieve in its existence if told of it, and that they would rise in tumult if they saw an attempt made to enforce it.
